We work with clients at every stage, from start ups to established companies — to build intelligent solutions that give their brand the impact it deserves. The result is an identity and digital presence they can truly own.

Focused on creating forward looking identities and digital experiences.

We build lasting relationships with our clients, offering the guidance needed to shape their products, services, and the future of their brands — helping new ideas take form and existing ones reach their potential.

We craft brand experiences across every channel that drive revenue, conversion, and meaningful engagement.

We stay intentionally small and flexible, scaling our skills and team through a trusted network of collaborators when the project demands it.

Our strength lies in the creative blending of brand, design, and technology — delivering considered results that create real business value.

Football Type 2
Football Type 2
£40
Football Type 2 is the sequel and revised edition to the award winning book Football Type — a book celebrating the history of football and typography.
From a patchy beginning as strictly identificatory aids, shirt numbers have grown in significance, with players gaining such attachment to the digits on their backs that they become part of their individual brands. The business of designing fonts reflects that and Football Type 2 is a celebration of that creativity as well as the historic stories behind the numbers.

Fashion photographer best known for his images of celebrities, models, and musicians. Though he is also known for his photography book NWI (1982), which documented the process of gentrification in the London neighborhoods of Primrose Hill and Camden. Born on January 2, 1938 in London, United Kingdom, Bailey dropped out of high school to serve in the Royal Air Force where he developed an interest in the photography of Henri Cartier-Bresson. Returning to England, Bailey began working as the fashion photographer John French's assistant.

Over the course of the 1960s and 70s, the artist gained attention from the press after a string of high-profile marriages to Jean Shrimpton, Catherine Deneuve, and Marie Helvin. In 1965, he published his first photography book Box of Pin-Ups, a collection of black-and-white images portraying Mick Jagger, The Beatles, Twiggy, and Andy Warhol, along with several other celebrity figures. Bailey has gone on to receive the title of Commander of the Order of the British

The first double distilled premium soju to be made in Europe.

Wihayo is the first double distilled premium soju to be made in Europe and marks Smörgåsbord's collaborative venture into product development with Korean/Dutch author and foodie Nathalia Ji Yun Jranenburg.

Project Information

Brief—
An all-encompassing and comprehensive one that we set ourselves, together with Nathalie Ji Yun Kranenburg who's vision was to distill the first soju outside Korea. We set about to: distill, name, brand and package this unique product with the aim of introducing the world's number one selling liquor (by volume) to a new audience.

The design challenge was to create an aesthetic that reflected and attracted both East & West cultures whilst not alienating either; drinkers (and thinkers) aged between 25 – 50 from Amsterdam to London, NYC, LA and Seoul.

Approach—
Having piqued the interest of the Herman Jansen distillery in Schiedam we spent a two year period experimenting with their award winning master distiller Ad van der Lee. After countless iterations we developed a base distillate that blends ground Korean rice and grains with a pinch of Dutch barley, resulting in a malty full-bodied soju.

Once the recipe was nailed we set about naming and branding the soju. Together with Nathalie we coined the name Wihayo, which derives from the word 'Wihayeo' – a phrase used by young Koreans when they 'cheers' before drinking soju – 'for you' in Korean.

Result—
Bottled in a 700ml green glass 'apotheek' style bottle and sealed with a black American walnut stopper, WIHAYO is a unique product with high potential for global sales. Its distinctive and memorable design demands attention on the 'back shelf' of a bar and its recipe marks a true innovation that perfectly.

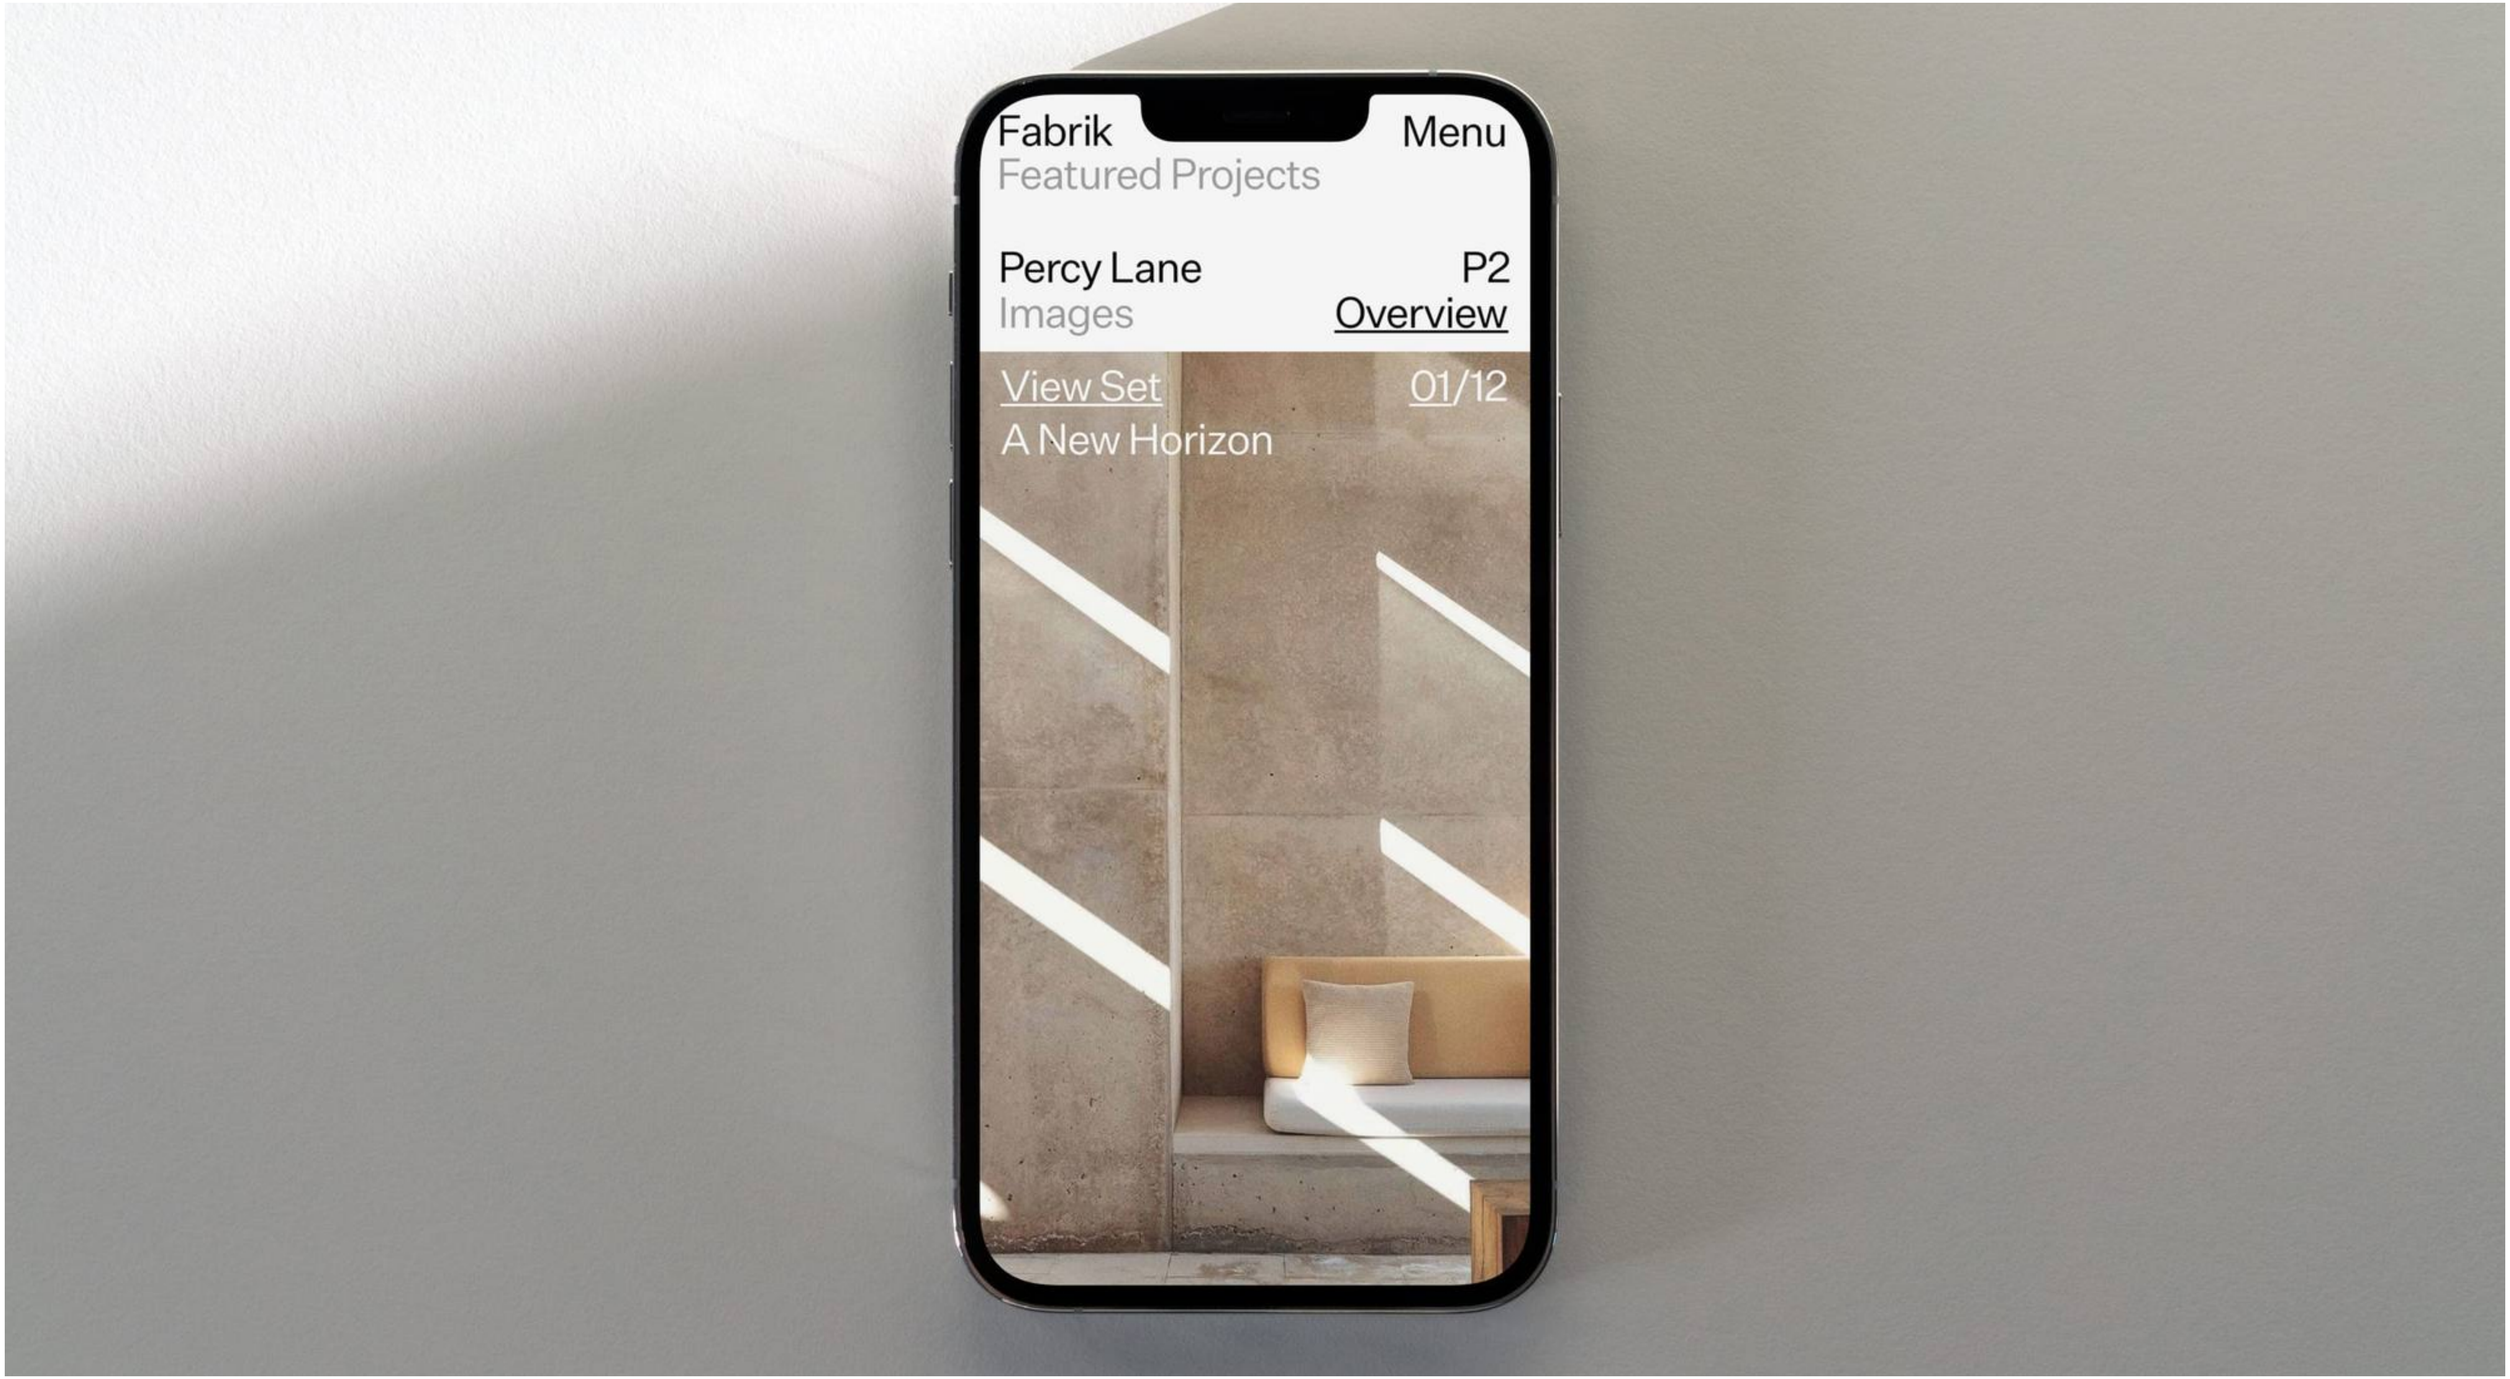

—D&AD wooden pencil for 2D Animation
—Since its 2018 launch Wihayo has secured distribution in the Netherlands, UK & Korea
—Extensive PR coverage including Monocle and Elle Food magazines

Lay Grotesk is a contemporary sans serif typeface that reinterprets the style of the milestones grotesk like Helvetica, Neue Haas Grotesk and Folio. It carries on the idea of neutrality at the basis of Swiss typefaces, while smoothing out their rigidity. The more evident contrast softens the shapes, making it elegant but at the same time without frills or other intrinsic meanings. Further reading at Type Department

I help ambitious teams design impactful products & purposeful brands. I can add the most value early in the process, helping your startup distil your product into a brand identity and story that will excite your first customers (and first hires). I'm a resourceful generalist used to startup chaos; I can design logotypes, brand systems, illustrations, marketing websites.
I led teams at IDEO and worked with international clients like Moncler, CHANEL, Aave, Target, MIT, but also eager startups like snuggs or eco elio. I'm comfortable wearing multiple hats and switching between strategy and production work. I'm also all about skin in the game, hence I'm open to compensation in equity + cash
